FELT OIL RESERVE LEASE TAINTED

Archie Roosevelt Quits the Sinclair Interests.

GIVES STARTLING TESTIMONY

Advised by His Brother Theodore to Resign Following Disclosures Concerning Lease of Teapot Dome Reserve—Walberg, Sinclair's Confidential Man, Also Severs Connection With Concern.

Washington, Jan. 22.—The scandal which has been hovering over former Secretary of the Interior Fall's lease of the Teapot Dome oil reserve to the Sinclair interests broke before the senate investigating committee in a most amazing manner.

Archie Roosevelt, son of the late president and brother of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt, told the committee that he resigned his connection with the Sinclair company because he was convinced the lease was corruptly obtained.

He was followed on the witness stand by W. D. Walberg, Harry Sinclair's right-hand confidential man, who told the committee he intended to forward his resignation from the Sinclair concern, "because he could not longer be happy in Sinclair's employment."

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, also a witness, testified that he had advised his brother to resign from the Sinclair company after Archie had told him of a conversation with Walberg, in which the latter had advised the same thing. He told the committee that he brought his brother to testify to circumstances, revealed in that conversation, which involved the charge that $68,000 had been paid by Sinclair to Secretary Fall's ranch foreman. Archie Roosevelt stated that Walberg told him he had seen canceled checks for that amount.

Sinclair sailed several days ago for Europe. Archie Roosevelt told the committee that he bought the steamer tickets at Sinclair's request and was directed by Sinclair not to allow his name to be placed on the passenger list. This testimony created a profound sensation.

Officials in every department of the government were completely astounded by the Roosevelt testimony, which has involved the administration in the greatest government scandal since the noted Ballinger-Pinchot controversy during the Taft administration.

The committee will pursue the matter further by examining the check stubs and books of the Sinclair Oil company and its associated enterprises. They are to be produced before the committee by General Counsel Stanford of the Sinclair interests.

Roosevelt's Testimony.
Archie Roosevelt in the course of his testimony said:

"Mr. Walberg called me up last Friday and said he would like to see me. We had been friends for quite a while. He came into my office and shut the door. He said he had some advice he wanted to give me. We had a two hours' conversation. He said he wished I would resign from the Sinclair companies; that I had a name and reputation which I should guard very jealously. He said he was unhappy in his employment with Sinclair, and that he was unhappy to see me in the same position.

"We talked over the situation and I asked him whether he thought Sinclair had bribed Secretary Fall. He hesitated—a nasty word, bribed—and he said: 'I think somebody might have lent Mr. Fall money.'

"Then I asked him why it was that Mr. Sinclair was leaving the city, going abroad. He shook his head and said that it must be on account of the findings of Senator Walsh on his trip to Palm Beach. Then he said that leaving him alone in New York, he was afraid he would be forced to expose other things; that undoubtedly he would be expected to 'lie' about certain things; that one of the things which worried him was a payment of $68,000 made to Secretary Fall's ranch foreman. He said he had seen the canceled checks.

"This, of course, was the thing that took my breath away. I phoned my brother, Ted, and wrote him a letter. I told him the whole thing as I have told it here to you. He told me to come here to Washington and go before the committee, that that was the only thing to do."

GREER MAY BE FREED

Dines Says He Doesn't Know Whether He Tried to Hit Chauffeur.

Los Angeles, Jan. 22.—An extraordinary court session at Good Samaritan hospital occurred when Courtland S. Dines testified from his bed how he was shot down on New Year's day by Horace Greer, Mabel Normand's chauffeur.

Indications that Greer would be freed on his plea of self-defense came when Dines testified: "I was greatly offended at Joe's (Greer's) attitude toward Miss Normand. Maybe I tried to hit Joe; maybe I did not. Whether I threatened him, I can't say. Joe wanted Mabel to go home. I don't remember just what he said, but something in the way he said it made me mad. Then the shot was fired. I remember nothing else."

The brief testimony of Dines failed to clear up the question: "Where was Edna Purviance when the firecrackers cracked?" It was on that question that Miss Normand, who repeated on the stand that the shots sounded like firecrackers, disagreed with the testimony given last Friday by Miss Purviance. Miss Normand said Miss Purviance was in the bedroom of Dines' home when the shooting occurred. Last Friday Miss Purviance testified she was certain that she was in the bathroom.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY TO TAKE THE REINS

Baldwin Regime Voted Out by House of Commons.

London, Jan. 22.—The Baldwin government met its pre-destined end before midnight when the house of commons expressed its want of confidence by 328 votes to 256.

Premier Baldwin will make a short statement to the house today and then send his resignation to King George, who will immediately call in Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader in parliament, inviting him to form a new cabinet.

Ramsay MacDonald, winding up the debate with an indictment of the Baldwin government, declared that the house was about to take a step which would be for the good of the country. After saying that it was the unemployment situation which had caused the downfall of the cabinet, the prospective premier said: "I agree that there is a great amount of fear regarding socialism, but the Labor party will do its best to dissipate and allay that fear."

It will probably be two weeks before the government will be fully organized and functioning. Meanwhile Premier Baldwin will retain control. Premier Baldwin, in his speech in defense of his government, lacked pugnacity. Among other things, he claimed that the Conservative government had done good work in settling the question of the war debt to America and in disposing of differences with the United States regarding bootlegging on the high seas.

Garrison Revolts.
Tampico, Jan. 22.—According to General Benigno Lopez, military commander of the state of Tamaulipas, the balance of the garrison at Ciudad Victoria has revolted. A force of 1,000 infantrymen from Tampico and San Luis Potosi will leave for Victoria and probably will attack the rebels there Wednesday morning.

GOES OVER HEADS OF LEADERS

Coolidge Firm Against Compromise in Tax Dispute.

STANDS FOR MELLON PROGRAM

Leader Longworth and Chairman Green of House Ways and Means Committee Confer With the President and Treasury Head—Senators Reed of Pennsylvania and Couzens in Debate on Mellon Plan.

Washington, Jan. 22.—The administration's determination to carry its fight for the Mellon tax reduction plan over the heads of the Republican congressional leaders to the rank and file members of the house and senate broke into the open.

President Coolidge made his position emphatically clear to Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, who called at the white house to urge upon the executive the necessity for a compromise, as seen by the party managers on both sides of the capitol.

It also developed that Representative Longworth, the party floor leader in the house, had been in a series of consultations with Mr. Coolidge's secretary, C. Bascom Slomp, and with Secretary Mellon himself within the past few days. While Mr. Longworth declined to divulge the details of the conversations, it was quite obvious that his suggestions of a compromise likewise had fallen upon barren ground.

The president and his treasury chief both are understood to take the attitude that the Republicans by all means must see the Mellon plan safely through the ways and means committee and onto the floor of the house. The Mellon was the subject of a spirited debate in the senate.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania opened the debate. He took the Mellon end of the argument, asking Senator Couzens whether he had within the last four years paid any income tax whatever, and if he had, would he amplify the statement heretofore made by telling the senate how much he had paid during each of the four years.

Couzens tartly replied: "I decline to be interrogated by the gentleman from Pennsylvania as to my personal affairs until the secretary of the treasury has disclosed his hand."

Reed retorted: "I do not understand that my question has anything to do with the correspondence of the secretary of the treasury further than to say that it was in that correspondence that the senator had made these statements, which I have asked him to amplify and which I understand he refuses to do."

Couzens replied: "Inasmuch as the senator from Pennsylvania has raised the question, I want to go on record as saying that the secretary of the treasury not only ought to disclose his own personal investments and the benefits that he has derived from his position as the secretary of the treasury, but he ought to tell us how much he is going to save as a result of his proposal to reduce taxes."

"More dishonest statements, misstatements, if not absolute falsehoods, have been handed out at the treasury department of the United States for the purpose of misleading the public than ever were issued by a public department in my recollection of government."

REBELS AVOID BATTLE

Obregon Strikes Across Country to Head Off Their Retreat.

Mexico City, Jan. 22.—President Obregon, at the head of his main army of 15,000 men, struck off across the country to head off the retreat of the rebel forces in the west under General Estrada, former war minister, and force them into a decisive battle. The Estrada forces, which had been confidently expected to take a stand against the federals near La Piedad, broke camp and began a rapid movement in the direction of the state of Michoacan. Federal air scouts have brought in reports that a strong force of rebel cavalry is now in the vicinity of Salvatierra, in the southern part of the state of Guanajuato. This force is expected to try cutting the federal rail connections with the capital. The situation is causing no alarm here.

Stribling Wins.
Indianapolis, Jan. 22.—Young Stribling, the Georgia whirlwind, defeated Cory Fay, miner-boxer of McKeesport, Pa., in 10 fast rounds here.

SENATOR E. D. SMITH

Chairman of Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

DOINGS IN OHIO

"Miss Hunter Not Poisoned."

Canton, O., Jan. 22.—A chemical analysis of the stomach of Ruth Hunter, 18, whose body was found on an unfrequented road near here the night of Jan. 2, failed to show any trace of poison. The analysis was made by Dr. R. G. Schnee of the Cleveland laboratory. His finding was that while there was no trace of chloroform or other poison in the stomach, death might have been caused by chloroform.

Bank Closes Its Doors.

Kenton, O., Jan. 22.—The Mt. Victory Savings bank, organized by the Boone family of Mt. Victory, this county, in 1906, has closed its doors and a state bank examiner is making an audit of the bank's records. The bank is to be taken over by the Mt. Victory bank, of which Henry E. Dickinson is president.

Dollings Trial Postponed.

Columbus, Jan. 22.—The Benham-Harrison trial was postponed Monday evening by Federal Judge Sater until Monday, Jan. 28, at 2 p. m. The postponement was made necessary by an attack of bronchitis suffered by William G. Benham, being tried with Dwight Harrison on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Mayor Charged With Assault.

Akron, O., Jan. 22.—Mayor H. V. Johnson of Kenmore, near this city, faced a charge of assault and battery in court. Daniel L. Zeisloft, Kenmore bank secretary, charged that Johnson forcibly threw him from the mayor's office. The argument started, it is said, as result of a case brought before Johnson.

Memorial Site Purchased.

Marion, O., Jan. 22.—Purchase of 43 acres, just south of Marion, any part of which may be used without charge for the site of the Harding memorial, was announced by the trustees of the Marion Cemetery association in a telegram sent to the Harding Memorial association at Washington.

Watchman Slugged.

Hamilton, O., Jan. 22.—Three yegs slugged, handcuffed and threatened to burn John Egge, watchman, blew the safe and secured more than $3,000 in money, bonds and checks at the Strauss department store. The janitor found Egge tied to a radiator in the store.

Jeweler Held Up.

Cleveland, Jan. 22.—Jewelry and diamonds valued at $7,000 were taken by two bandits after they had held up Samuel Goodweather, proprietor of a Lakewood jewelry store, at the point of revolvers and trusted him in a chair. The bandits escaped.

Routed Out by Fire.

Toledo, Jan. 22.—Thirteen people escaped from a rooming house when fire damaged the upper floors and completely destroyed the main building of the Ohio-Page company adjoining, causing a loss estimated at $82,500.

French Mothers Decorated.

Paris, Jan. 22.—French Minister of Agriculture Cheron decorated 12 French women with the legion of honor. Each of the women honored by the government is the mother of a large family, the number of children ranging from eight to 25.

Invalid Takes Poison.

Columbus, Jan. 22.—Joseph A. Kumpf, 23, committed suicide by taking poison at his home here. He died in a hospital a short time after taking the poison. His health is said by relatives to have prompted him to take his life.

REBEL REPRISALS APPREHENDED

American Warship Arrives at the Port of Tampico.

SHIPPING EMBARGO REMOVED

Oil Companies Order All Their American Employees From the Light Oil District of Tampico—More Than $100,000,000 Worth of American Property Abandoned to the Rebels. Federal Garrisons Revolt.

Tampico, Mexico, Jan. 22.—The United States warship Richmond arrived at the entrance to the port of Tampico.

A cable received by J. A. Brown, manager of the Transcontinental Petroleum company, Mexican subsidiary of the Standard Oil company, from New York attorneys of the Standard Oil company, said: "Embargo lifted. An unusual shipping restriction removed."

The local managers' association declared they would continue shipping regardless of the blockade.

All the federal garrisons from Victoria to Earle, 11 kilometers north of Tampico, are understood to have revolted and gone over to the rebels.

All the oil companies interested here have ordered all their American employees from the light oil district in Tampico, fearing that the arrival of the Richmond will cause their lives to be in danger from the rebels. This means the abandoning of over $100,000,000 worth of American property to the rebels.

Colonel Ralph O'Neill, the "flying Mexican," continues his daily reports direct to President Obregon of the activities of the rebels. From his Haviland plane O'Neill dropped bombs on the Estrada forces as they were moving from La Piedad to the southern part of the state. O'Neill flew from the federal headquarters at Tehuacan to the southeastern front and back, linking President Obregon with the forces now marching on Vera Cruz. It was the longest wartime military flight ever made in Mexico. O'Neill is a Mexican citizen, born in Chicago, though his father was an Irish-American. He is in command of the air forces of the federal armies.

ENCOUNTER GALE

American Warships En Route to Mexico In Center of Storm.

Washington, Jan. 22.—While the state department was making public a sharp ultimatum to Mexican rebels the nine American warships to enforce its terms were at the mercy of one of the worst storms in the history of gulf waters. Caught between Panama and Vera Cruz, the cruiser Omaha, six destroyers and the supply ship Prometheus are believed to be in the center of the storm. The cruiser Richmond, standing off Tampico to break a blockade and see that foreign shipping passes free was caught in the storm and blown to sea. Off Vera Cruz the cruiser Tacoma, grounded on Blanquilla reef, is being pounded to pieces. The navy department is unable to say whether the gun crew of 40 and the officers have been taken off. The two American ships have been forced within the Vera Cruz breakwater for protection. The remainder of the crew of the Tacoma was landed in Vera Cruz when she was blown on the reef several days ago.

May Plead Insanity.

Hamilton, O., Jan. 22.—Plea of insanity is expected to be entered at preliminary hearing for James Frank Anderson, 36, charged with first degree murder in the shooting of Mrs. Cleona Collins, 35, widow. Relatives of the woman believe Anderson had been rejected by her and decided to kill her.

College Gets Library.

Mansfield, Jan. 22.—By the provision of the will of the Rev. Hiram W. Kellogg, late chaplain of the Ohio state reformatory, his library is bequeathed to Mount Union college, Alliance, of which Dr. Kellogg was at one time professor of theology.

Victim of Gunmen.

Lorain, O., Jan. 22.—Alfonso Stiglano, 22, of Youngstown, was found dead here with five bullet holes in his body, victim of mysterious gunmen.

Roy Beam, 28, Stony Run, Md., and his two companions, girls aged 10 and 14, are dead as the result of their automobile being struck by a passenger train on a grade crossing at Stony Run.

BOK QUIZZED

Refuses to Disclose Financial Details of Peace Plan Idea.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Edward W. Bok, promoter of the $100,000 Bok peace plan award, repeatedly refused to tell the senate propaganda investigating committee how much more money was being expended in promoting this idea.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, author of the investigation resolution and member of the investigating committee, later told the senate of Bok's refusal, declaring: "Bok says he put a certain fund in the bank and allowed other people to draw on it. He does not know how much they have drawn, but he is certain of only one thing, and that is he is not going to tell how much he put there. Now I think we have a right to know, and probably before we get through we will be able to find out."

Bok, in refusing to disclose the financial details of his project told the investigating committee he did not consider it any of the senate's business; that he put up the money and he regarded it as a personal matter that congress had no right to inquire into.

Members of the committee did not share this view, as practically every one of the five made clear in their questioning of Bok. It was indicated that if Bok persisted in his refusal, the committee would exercise the authority imposed on it in the investigation resolution to force a disclosure, even if it had to go to the banks handling the funds to get the information.

BREAK WITH BRITAIN LOOMS

France Establishes Practical Blockade of Cologne.

Paris, Jan. 22.—As a virtual reprisal for the British refusal to allow Franco-Belgian military trains free access to the Cologne zone, occupied by British forces, the French have established a practical blockade of Cologne. The blockade is officially justified by France as being "regrettable necessary owing to the disorganization of the railroads."

In spite of the immediate and urgent protest by Britain, the blockade menaces the city of Cologne with starvation, as well as cutting off supplies for the British troops, it is said. It is understood that France is determined to maintain the policy of interference with traffic.

Observers see in the French move an indication of Premier Poincare's future attitude toward the Labor government in England, and do not believe that the rupture can be long postponed.

Seven Burned to Death.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22.—Seven firemen plunged headlong into a blazing tank of oil at the plant of the Atlantic Refining company here and were burned to death. The men were thrown into the boiling oil when a ladder on which they were standing collapsed. The dead are: Captains Edward Jones, Rudolph Bliskam and Frasier, Hoseman John Markham, Patrick Abbott, Bob Smith and Sim Bolla.

HOUSE OF THRILLS

By MOLLIE MATHER

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

DOCTOR HAMMOND smiled, a look of regret in his fine eyes. "I have enjoyed this visit, Dal," he said, "and now I must be on my way to Summerton. Have a sick patient there and tonight will decide whether we must operate. Know anything about the country hotel?"

Dalton Neil looked up eagerly. "Summerton was my old home town. Lived there until I came to the city to college, and later to practice medicine. And I loved the place so for its home memories; you understand that I have kept the little house just as mother left it. I hoped that in the stress of busy life I should find the old thrill in going out there occasionally to spend a few restful days. But Myra cannot be persuaded to stop in the country, so when I go I have to go alone. You will be welcome to stop over in my house, Bob; it is always ready for occupancy. In case," Dal smiled, "you should not care to make your own morning coffee, Mrs. Tyler, my next-door neighbor, will serve breakfast to a friend of mine. Just give her this card of introduction." Doctor Dal scribbled a line on his visiting card.

Doctor Hammond accepted the card gratefully. "Sounds most inviting," he returned. "I have always had a secret desire for a hidden village home where I might run when practice became too strenuous. It is a pity that your wife does not share your sentiment in this respect." Doctor Hammond flashed his winning smile. "I shall marry a country-loving wife when the time comes." "When it comes?" Dal mocked. "Oh, indifferent one!" he went on. "And I forgot another thrill. My house on the edge of a wood is said to be haunted. An old resident of Summerton told me on my last visit that a white-clad young woman has been known to roam at night through the vacated rooms, moaning as she goes."

Bob laughed as he made his way to his waiting car. "I'm afraid I'll be too sleepy to hear the moaning ghost," he returned.

It was necessary to stop over that he might be with a patient the last thing that night. Bob found the little house of Dal's hospitality and drew a contented sigh as its spirit of restfulness sank upon him. One high window he noticed was open, with its screen. He ascended to the chintz bedroom and lit one of the emergency candles on the quaint bureau. He saw as he wound his watch that it was past twelve o'clock. He found the stair again and went down to the kitchen for a drink of water.

The sufferer, ghostly or alive, must be in the deserted house. It appeared to come now from regions below. Bob opened a door to see a flight of steep steps leading cellarward. Candle in hand, he bravely descended. The breeze from a lower window extinguished the faint light he carried. Then, suddenly in shadowy darkness he saw a white form stretched before him—a woman's form, white upraised arms beseeching.

Doctor Bob got out his match box and relighted the candle; even as he did so the wide eyes of the ghostly young woman closed again in unconsciousness.

He did not stop to wonder how the mysterious visitor came to be there but, feeling his way, carried her up to the sitting room and gently deposited her upon the couch. Her arm was broken, and when his skill had coaxed the color back to her deathly face and lips the unexpected patient smiled at him wanly.

"I must have given you a scare," she said, "and I had intended it to be a welcome. Doctor Dal, that is what we call him, called by phone today to ask me to put things here in a readiness for you. I was going to leave a little lunch on the table and went down to the cellar for jellies that mother keeps there for Doctor Dal. They are old friends—we live next door. And, at the top of that awful stair my foot slipped and I knew no more for a long time. It seems to me," Jasmine Tyler went on slowly, "that I fainted and came to several times, but could not move for the pain. And as mother had gone away to spend the evening in a neighboring town, there was no hope that she would notice my absence. Now, if you think I might make the effort to go back home—"

"I am going to carry you there," Doctor Hammond said. "You are to be very submissive and moan as much as you like. It is not often that I find so charming a ghost."

Miss Jasmine found the strength to laugh.

"Oh, the ghost," she said; "you know, when I opened my eyes down there in the cellar I wondered, half conscious, if they might not have been mistaken about its being a woman. Your face was so white, your eyes so dark and staring. But it was fortunate that my ghost happened to be a skilled doctor, with his tools at hand."

"Did you like the little old home in Summerton?" Doctor Dal asked his friend, when he called a few days later to express thanks for hospitality, "and did you find the ghost?"

Doctor Hammond's fine eyes were this time happily retrospective.

"I found the ghost," he agreed. "Also, I spent a pleasant day following at Mrs. Tyler's. I am still determined," added the doctor musingly, "to marry a country-loving wife, when the time comes. And that time is coming mighty quick now, Dal," he said surprisingly.

Right Confined to Few.

Weakness in Dissimulation.

Dissimulation is but a faint kind of policy or wisdom; for it asketh a strong wit and a strong heart to know when to tell truth, and to do it; therefore it is the weaker sort of politicians that are the greatest dissemlers.—Bacon.

Figures in the Moon.
Some keenly discerning people see a woman alongside the man in the moon and account for her presence there by her churning on Sunday while the "old gentleman" chopped the wood. A pretty eastern fancy is that the figure in the moon is that of Ina, who weaves the clouds into white cloth and who sent her husband back to earth by the rainbow ridge in order that death might not defile her heavenly home.

CONCRETE BLOCK FOR NEW GARAGE

Convenient, Economical, Firesafe and Suitable for All Classes of Structures.

The amount of money invested in even the lowest priced automobile justifies a substantial garage that will give the required protection against weather, theft and fire.
With a garage on the home grounds the owner has his car always within reach and where he can use his spare time in keeping it clean and in good running order. He also has a place to keep oil, spare tires and other car supplies. With the car near the house there will be less danger from fire, tampering and pilfering as it is always under the owner's eye.
Suitable and Practical.
Wherever possible the material used in the walls and roof of the garage should be the same as that of the house. Concrete block are suitable and practical for all classes of garages from the small building, such as is shown in the illustration, to the types with separate rooms for several cars, such as are built for the accommodation of car owners living in apartment houses. The block may be finished in stucco to harmonize with the house by the addition in cement mix of color to produce the desired tint.
An essential feature of garage design is wide eaves or overhang, which serve as a protection to the owner from rain or dripping water when locking the doors during wet weather. A door at the side will be found convenient for use when the car is not to be taken out.

Garages are often heated from the house plant, although there are many small inexpensive garage heaters which give perfect satisfaction. A flue for separate heating in one of the floor plans may be easily included in the building.
Special care should be given to the selection of the hardware for supporting and operating the large movable doors. Doors that stick and bind are a nuisance and an extra $10 spent on good hardware will more than repay the owner in comfort and convenience.
Allow for Working Space.
A garage should be built to allow for plenty of working space about the car, and even though the owner's car be of the smaller type, it is good economy to build a garage to accommodate a large car, thus anticipating future needs.
Built of concrete block, finished in stucco, a garage is practically permanent. Expense from repairs, painting, and insurance is reduced to a minimum and the car owner is assured that his car has maximum protection.

STICKING OF CONE CLUTCH

Usually the Result of Worn Facing—New Leather Should Remedy the Trouble.

The sticking of a cone clutch may be due to a tendency of the clutch member to fit too snugly in the cone part of the flywheel. This is usually the result of worn facing of the clutch member, caused, in turn, by burning the facing through a habit of slipping the clutch. A new leather facing should remedy the trouble and a handy temporary solution is to wedge broken pieces of a hack-saw blade between the facing and the clutch member at several points on its circumference. This will often smooth out a rough and sticking cone clutch.

DEATH ALMOST WON IN THIS RACE

This photograph, caught of an engine and an automobile while both were going at high speed, shows that the auto driver who tries to beat the train to a crossing generally ends up in a hospital or undertaker's. Death was prevented from taking its usual toll when the motorist saw his error just in time. He swung his car up a steep bank, almost overturning it, and was able by a few feet to avoid a crash.

TROLLEY CAR CANNOT CHANGE ITS COURSE

Dangerous Practice to Follow Street Cars Too Closely—Keep Twelve Feet Away.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)
Accidents in which automobiles figure with trolley cars are not the most uncommon on the list and there are several little points that if followed by the auto driver will lessen such accidents. One of the principal things to keep in mind is that a trolley car runs on tracks and consequently cannot change its course, so that it is up to the motor car pilot to watch out for trolleys, rather than for the motor-man to watch out for automobiles.
Every day we see automobiles closely following street cars on the rails. This is a very dangerous practice, for the auto driver has no means of knowing what instant the motor-man may jam on his brakes, and in such a case it is almost impossible to avoid a collision. Then there is the auto driver who fails to take into consideration the fact that trolley cars are likely to turn off at corners where tracks intersect, and thus at times the motorist finds himself jammed between the trolley and the curb. Also the driver often fails to figure that when a street car turns away from him on a curve the rear end is bound to swing out several feet beyond the tracks.
To be safe a driver should always stop his auto at least twelve feet behind a standing street car, and in no case should he take dangerous chances crowding in between a trolley and the curb. Also drivers should never attempt to pass a street car moving in the same direction, on the left side, but this is a practice that is common in many cities.

BEWARE OF THE "ROAD LIFT"

Prudence in City or Elsewhere Says That It Shall Neither Be Offered or Accepted.

The lift on the road is an old act of kindness. Decent people in settled orderly places offered it because they were amiable and wanted to help another person along the way; but prudence in a city, or elsewhere for that matter, says that it shall neither be offered nor accepted nowadays.
A good deal of crime is on wheels, says the Chicago Tribune. Criminals are scouting the street and the country roads. The people they pick up are virtually helpless. Contrariwise, the man in a car who yields to a request for a ride may find a gun at his head in short order. The good Samaritan may go to the hospital in a barrel. It is the ugly necessity of city life to regard a stranger as a potential enemy. It need not result in discourtesy, but it says keep your guard up. Credulity often leads to an empty pocketbook and a black eye, or, in the case of a woman, to worse.

TUBE REPAIR KIT ESSENTIAL

One of the Most Important Accessories for Every Motorist to Carry in His Machine.

Probably one of the most important accessories for every motorist to have in his car is a tube repair kit. It is very much like life insurance, in that it is no good at all until needed. When it is needed it is indispensable. This fact is particularly true when tires are punctured many miles from any repair station. Considering the kit's small cost tire men say it is the cheapest insurance possible against country road delays and expense.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

A tire with low air pressure creates friction and causes the car to slow up.

A rigid shaft will bind unless the alignment is perfect and provision is made to prevent frame deflection.

Washington's Ice Melted.
George Washington put up ice. In January, 1775, his diary showed he filled a dry well under a summer house and another well in a cellar. Under date of June 5 he wrote in his diary: "Opened the well in my cellar in which I had laid up a store of ice, but there was not the smallest particle remaining. I then opened the other repository, in which I found a large store."

Church's History.
With much diversity of opinion on minor points, there is a general agreement in dividing the history of the church into three great periods. The first, from the birth of Christ to the time of Constantine; the second from that epoch to the Reformation, and third, from the Reformation to the present time.

Dickens as Social Reformer.
To my mind the greatest social reformer that we ever had, and one of the greatest that the world has ever seen, was a man of letters, one of the two greatest names perhaps of modern literature—Charles Dickens. That great writer points out that all the inheritors of that time—and we are the inheritors of that time—had their origin in the appalling circumstances in which the working people lived—in London, of course, which he knew best, first of all, but in like degree all over the country.—Viscount Burnham.

Microbes With a Double Life.
The transformation of microbes from one form to another has been described by many investigators, and it has even been suggested that the same microbe in different forms may be responsible for different diseases.

U. B. CHURCH

Interesting Programs Sunday — Evangelistic Services During Week.

Sunday at the U. B. church was a happy day. A large crowd came out in the morning and enjoyed and took part in the splendid services. At the morning preaching hour, little Eleanor Vandevort sang a very pretty solo. Good crowds were out for the Christian Endeavor meetings in the evening and interesting programs were rendered. In the Junior C. E. especially, where they had a very impressive object lesson by the superintendent, Mrs. Nan Kirkpatrick. At the preaching hour, the choir was filled with young girls about thirty of them, of the Otterbein Guild chapter, who added much to the services with their fresh, young voices. A duet was sung by Miss May Willis and Miss Anna Jane White, which was very pretty. Professor Good also sang a solo with a violin obligato. Rev. Hiles preached earnestly on "Prepare to Meet Thy God." He said in part: "We meet God every day—to live is an awful responsibility. We meet God in our influence. Your life either makes some one better or worse. The school of which your boy or your girl is a part is either better or worse because of his life. We must meet God in death, tho we evade Him in life, we most certainly must meet Him in the Valley of the Shadow; and then finally we must meet God at the judgment bar of God. We had better confess our sins now before men than before that awful bar where shall assemble all the kingdoms of the earth." At the conclusion of the services two were received into membership.

There will be services each evening this week except Saturday and every afternoon beginning Tuesday at two o'clock. Come.

BILLBOARDS

Large Advertisers Are Throwing Such Methods Into the Discard.

All novelties have their run and their end. A tide has set in against the inartistic and disfiguring billboard. It is announced that three of their largest patrons will do no more billboard advertising after the termination of running contracts. It is a decided forward movement of the campaign to eliminate the unsightly billboards from streets and from suburban and rural highways, where their chief claim to prominence in the public eye is their obtrusion upon the beauties of nature.

The value of such advertising always has been a doubtful quantity. That large national advertisers have decided to eliminate it is significant of the general tide. They are not the first of those who have patronized these affronts to civic improvement and to withdraw their support. Emphasis is given to the crusade by the prominence of these concerns in the advertising field that attracts attention.

They have set an example that should be followed. There will be more pleasure in taking an automobile tour into the country when one has assurance that the most beautiful views offered by nature to tourists are not obstructed by wooden barriers of distorted width and height, splashed with crude pictures in gaudy colors, that insult every sense of proportion and fitness.

Automobile clubs can render good service to their members in this respect by speeding the crusade for the elimination of all disfiguring billboards and offensive signs of every shade, from all the great highways of the country.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

Suit Settled and Dismissed.

The suit of Peter Fulton against Ira B. Weiler resulting from an auto accident, and which was called for Thursday in common pleas court, has been settled and dismissed at the costs of defendant. The plaintiff was represented by Barton Walters and the defendant by Abernethy & Simkins.

Assignee Given Damages.

Judge Roscoe Hornbeck of the common pleas court of Madison county decided the case of Barton Walters assignee of Charles A. Steele and allowed his claim for damages in the Bragg county ditch proceedings awarding the assignee $1,218 against the county commissioners.

Appointed Administrator.

Mrs. Viola Glick has been appointed administrator of the estate of her husband, Asa B. Glick. The personal estate is estimated to be worth $3500. Clay Hitler, Frank Valentine and Edwin Leist were appointed appraisers.

FOREIGN TITLES PUZZLE TO WASHINGTON HOSTESSES

Keeping the Proper Prefix for Guests at Tongue's End Is Difficult Task.

Many and serious are the tribulations of the hostess to official society in Washington, and not the least of her worries is the necessity of keeping at her tongue's end the proper title and prefix for those of her guests who are members of the diplomatic corps. In deference to the customs of a democratic country many of the foreign ambassadors and ministers, together with the members of their staffs and families, have adopted plain "Mr.," "Mrs.," and "Miss" as the only titles by which they are to be addressed. Others have not, however, and the official diplomatic list of the State department presents an odd mixture of prefixes gathered from the ends of the earth. In some cases there even appears to be a paradoxical divergence among the representatives of a single country.

J. J. Jusserand, the French ambassador, who as dean of the corps heads the diplomatic list, eschews the "Monsieur" of his nativity and styles himself "Mr. Jusserand." But the next name is not that of "Mrs. Jusserand." Instead the list reads "Madame Jusserand," and there follows a string of "Madames" and "Mademoiselles." The eye of the seeker after correctness next encounters "Senor Don Juan Riano y Gayangos," the ambassador of Spain, and his wife, "Senora Dona Alicia Ward de Riano," "Senora," "Senoras" and "Senoritas" rule generally among the Latin Americans, although the Argentine list is headed by "Mr. Felipe A. Espil," the charge d'affaires, while the Uruguayan minister and his wife style themselves "Dr. Jacobo Varela" and "Mme. Varela."

With the Japanese it is "Mr." and "Madame." The Chinese minister is "Mr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze" and his wife is "Madame Sze," but the counselor of the legation is "Mr. Yung Kwai," while his wife is "Mrs. Yung Kwai." Every man except two on the German list has the prefix of "Dr.," and of the two exceptions, one is a "Baron" and the other, according to the official list, is to be addressed as "Herr." The feminine prefix is "Frau." Among the Italians it is "Signor" and "Signora."

MISTLETOE KILLS TREES

Department of Agriculture Labels It Deadly Parasite.

If the silent signal of the mistletoe hanging from the chandelier means anything to you next Christmas, remember for an instant that in the southwest it is a commercial pest, and that for twelve years scientists have been studying its depredations and how best to exterminate it. Mistletoe fastens on the yellow pine tree, checks growth, and finally causes the tree to die. By the Department of Agriculture it is called an "insidious and destructive disease," and its eradication is an important problem.

About the only way to get rid of this parasite is to cut down the tree on which it has fastened. The mistletoe dies with its host, the yellow pine.

PLAYGROUNDS BENEFIT KIDS

Sioux City Official Finds Decrease in Juvenile Delinquency.

Juvenile delinquency in Sioux City, Iowa, shows a decrease of 20 per cent in the last two years, C. H. Orpin, juvenile officer, declares.

Municipal bathing places, parks and playground activities are responsible for the better moral fiber of children, Mr. Orpin says.

"Taxpayers seldom realize the good investment that is being made by providing facilities for recreational activities which furnish an outlet for the energy of the young," said Mr. Orpin. "Good, healthy exercise and amusement leave the minds of the children clear, and there is very little energy left for crime, plots, or inclination toward misdemeanors."

REGAINS HEARING BY JOLT

Resident of Topeka, Kan., Knocked Down by Car Is Benefited.

Amos McDaniel, seventy six, of Topeka, Kan., who was knocked down by a car and badly hurt on a street in Downs recently, was able to be taken home a few days ago. For many years prior to the accident Mr. McDaniel had been totally deaf in his right ear, and his left ear also was badly affected.

After he began recovering it was observed that he could hear partially through the right ear and he explained it by saying it seemed that some obstruction in his ear had been torn loose by the shock of the accident.

ELECTRIFIES LAPLAND LINE

Sweden Opens Vast Iron Fields With Most Northerly Railway.

The electrification of the most northerly railroad in the world has been completed in Sweden. This railway has a length of 285 miles, and is the second longest in the world, being surpassed only by an electrified stretch of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad in the United States.

The Swedish road links the iron ore mining districts of Lapland with the Svartoen and Narvik ports in the north, and, before being completely electrified, had carried 75,000,000 tons of iron ore, valued at nearly $280,000,000.

DERBY UNION

Met With Miss Melva Daugherty and Good Program Was Rendered.

The first meeting of the new year was held January 8, at the home of Miss Melva Daugherty with a large attendance. Rev. Miller conducted prayer service the first half hour of the meeting. The leader, Mrs. Agnes Mathaes, then took charge of the program. Opening song, How Firm a Foundation. The program for Victory day celebration was carried in the meeting. Reading, Crusading in the Court Room, Mrs. Mary Winfough; reading, Stabilize Permanent Settlement, Mrs. Inez Erskine. It was voted by the union to send two dollars to the victory fund. As January was designated for dues paying month thirty-seven responded at the meeting. One new member, Mrs. Stella Goldsberry, was added to the union. Thirty-four members, one visitor, fifteen children were present.

Report of work: Nineteen visits to the sick, one dinner, one plant, one pie, one dozen cakes, one gallon lard, one gallon mincemeat, five pounds of meat, one-half gallon of milk.

The social hour was enjoyed by all and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and assisting hostesses, Mrs. Retta Riddle, Mrs. Alice Hall and Mrs. Lizzie Edwards.

The next meeting will be held February 12, at the home of Mrs. Hattie Smith. Topic: Frances Willard Memorial, leader, Mrs. Jennie Hoskins. Assisting hostesses, Mrs. Etta Tracy, Mrs. Edith Connell and Mrs. Nellie Andrews. Each member is cordially and urgently invited to attend.

Cherry Tree's Home.

Kerasoun in Asia Minor is the home of the cherry tree. When the Roman general Lucullus, after a victorious campaign in Asia Minor, carried home the shoots of a new tree he named it the Kerasoun tree. Later the name was shortened to "Karass," then to "Cerie," and finally the Anglo-Saxon tongue involved the word "cherry."

AMUSEMENTS

Douglas MacLean, whose work during the past year ranks him as the green's foremost light comedian, makes his debut as the producer of his own starring vehicles in "Going Up," his latest comedy production, which comes to the Met theater for five days commencing Wednesday.

To those in the motion picture industry, Mr. MacLean's advent into the production field is significant. To the average picture goer the importance of the move and its effect on his forthcoming production may require some explanation.

Mr. MacLean's decision to produce his own vehicles and to continue appearing in the star roles was the result of his determination to offer the motion picture public the very best productions from every angle.

"No star can hope to succeed and to remain in public favor with bad pictures," says Mr. MacLean. "By forming my own production company and most capable and experienced aids surrounding myself with the best, that can be obtained, I feel I am insuring myself against the sort of pictures that have been the undoing of many a star.

"Under my new arrangements, I will be able to secure the best story material available regardless of how little or how much it may cost and to convert such material into the finest possible screen entertainment. I feel that 'Going Up,' which is the first picture produced by my new organization, demonstrates quite satisfactorily what we will be able to accomplish."

Illuminating Irritation.

Ida incidentally indicates interest in fees, Irving, impressionable, infatuated, judiciously invests. Ida's indulgence in fees inordinate, insatiable, Irving, impecunious, inaptly introduces inexpensive innovations, Ida, instantly irate, in impatient irritation, indignant, impeaches Irving's iterated infatuation, insinuating indifference, inurbanity. Ida's infantile, inelegant invective illuminates Irving's innermost intelligence, inhibiting infatuation, intercepting intentions.—Youth's Companion.

BUSINESS COLLEGE

Extension Night School Established in Chamber of Commerce Rooms.

Mr. L. C. Smith, president of the Greenfield Business college, Greenfield Ohio, has made arrangements to open an Extension Night school and probably a day school at Circleville, at the chamber of commerce rooms.

Mr. Smith has been conducting a Business college at Greenfield, Ohio, for over eighteen years. The Extension work of his school is nationally known. There is in session at the present time a school in the Y. M. C. A. at Washington, C. H., Ohio and at the Y. M. C. A. at Nelsonville, Ohio.

The work of the night school is just as thoro as the day school at Greenfield and affords an excellent opportunity for young people of this city and surrounding community who are working during the day to forward their education by training in our Night School.

This school is offering an unusual school at home plan of instructions in connection to the Extension Night class. The extension branches of the Greenfield Business college that are opening up thruout the state will be permanent schools, if given the proper support from the people.

ALTITUDE IS MEASURED BY BOILING OF WATER

Tests Show That Surveying Method Is Less Accurate Than the Hypsometer.

The most accurate way of measuring the height of a mountain is the boiling-water test. Although the modern barometers and surveying instruments used for making such observations are wonderful, they cannot rival the boiling test. Many mountain measurements made with surveying instruments have been corrected when water was boiled and observed on the summits.

No one yet knows the height of Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world. Its altitude has been measured perhaps a score of times, but no two of these observations come out the same. The various calculations have therefore been added together and averaged, giving the familiar figures 29,002 feet. The world will not know the real height until someone succeeds in climbing to its summit and boiling water there.

A special instrument, called the hypsometer, has been invented for making these tests. It is compact and easily carried on mountain-climbing expeditions. The only thing breakable about the device is the thermometer used for testing the water. The hypsometer is so contrived that it can be used in the snow or when high winds are blowing and still give accurate results.

At sea level water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit. As the altitude increases the boiling point drops. On very high mountains water boils at temperatures so low that it is impossible to prepare a hot drink, and locomotives have difficulty in getting sufficient steam pressure. The mountain climbers who succeeded in reaching the highest altitude ever attained on Mount Everest found that even when water came to a boil in those high regions it was still possible for them to plunge their hands in it without scalding them.

The boiling test is very accurate. The mountain climber may find himself in peril among the eternal snows, but the hypsometer is never disturbed and its readings are correct to the fraction of a foot. The hypsometer has greatly simplified the work of the mountain climber. A barometer, to be exact, must be very delicately made and of considerable size. It is obviously difficult to carry a long glass tube up a steep, rocky mountainside without accident. The barometer varies if the mercury is not properly refined or if the vacuum of the tube is not quite perfect. The boiling-water test settles any question of altitude.

GIVES MEANING OF OZARK

Veteran Editor Declares That Word Came From "Aux Arc."

The word Ozark, the origin of which has always been more or less of a mystery, comes from the French word, "aux arc," meaning "the place of the hills," according to Charles E. Reid, veteran editor of the Ozark (Mo.) Democrat. Mr. Reid has searched for other explanations of the origin of the word, but could find none.

A Frenchman who had lived in the region suggested that it was a corruption of the French phrase named, probably applied by the French-Canadians and Anglicized later by English settlers.

AUTO CLIMBS TO TREE TOP

Catapults to Another, Falls to Ground, Two Unhurt.

One of the queerest of motor accidents took place on the state highway, West Tisbury, Mass., when a small car of the bus type struck an oak tree, bent it to an angle of 45 degrees, shinned up the entire height of the tree and made a perfect catapult curve, landing in the middle of another tree twenty feet away. A branch of this tree turned the car over and it fell to the ground. Mr. and Mrs. Garret Richards, who were in the car, were spilled into the underbrush but were not seriously hurt. The police could hardly credit the story of what happened, but the scraped bark and bent tree were mute witnesses.

DAMAGE SUIT

Charles Baldozer Asks $51,768.25 From Scioto Valley Railway & Power Co.

A damage suit for $51,768.25 was filed Monday, by Hogan, Hogan and Hogan, as attorneys for Charles D. Baldozer, against the Scioto Valley Railway and Power company.

Baldozer lives in Pickaway county. He says that on November 16, 1923, while driving his auto on the Adelphi pike easterly from Kinnickinnick, where the pike parallels the defendant's tracks, when he reached the crossing of the pike and tracks his machine was struck by a traction car and was hurled 45 feet and suffered a fracture of the skull and other personal injuries; that his health has been permanently impaired, he being first confined in a hospital and since then at home.

The collision is blamed entirely on the Traction company's negligence, namely unlawful speed, failure to have a watchman at crossing, failure to give a proper warning whistle, failure to have reasonable care in the operation and control of the traction car. Then follows details of the wreck of the auto.—Scioto Gazette.

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"The city is no place for a dog," observed the Hotel Stenographer, as she watched a woman pass thru Peacock Alley with a poodle on a leash.

"A hotel is no place for one, anyhow," agreed the House Detective.

"One of them little mutts tackled another one here one day and I started to separate them, and got dog-bit and hit on the bean with an umbrella besides."

"I don't want a pet I have to tie to me," remarked the girl. "If it doesn't love me well enough to follow me around and obey, without being tied, I do not want it."

"That's the reason I've never been married, Kelly. The average married woman is like a dame on the end of a string. She puts in most of her time pulling to keep the pup at her heels, and every now and then she has to pick it up and carry it."

"Married women are that way with their husbands. Instead of following the woman around, running errands for her and coming promptly every time she whistles, as he did when engaged, the married man gets interested in other things and other women. When she wants him for anything she has to pull the string with which the parson tied 'em to each other."

"She has to jerk him away from golf games in the day time and poker games at night; she has to yank the string when she sees he is about to jump into the lap of some other woman; she has to give him a pull when he gets too much interested in his stenographer, and, in fact, has to spend most of her time either pulling the string or picking him up and running away with him."

"It is queer how unruly a man gets when he changes from a lover to a husband, Kelly, and as far as I can see now, I am just going to hang onto the two or three steadies I have and let matrimony ride for Sweeney."

Change of Modes, Word From Paris

Fall Openings Reveal Radical Ideas in Women's Apparel.

The autumn openings in Paris have revealed the beginning of a fashion dispute which promises considerable interest to the amateur as well as to the professional of fashion, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Times. One camp desires the restoration of the tailored suit to its prewar position of elegance and usefulness. The opposing party seeks to restore the former elegance through the medium of lines expressed in the two and the three-piece costumes. Patou, among those couturiers most favored by Americans, has come out strongly for the abolition of narrow and tailored costumes generally. On the other hand, old and well-recognized houses like Carre and Tolleman have introduced long, narrow, semi-fitted tailored suits, which by their new features are exciting much interest.

Guided by the expressed preference of their chic clientele most of the houses that have opened are showing gowns following the straight slim line that women have decided the most youthful and generally becoming.

There is a very effective three-piece costume in rough suiting with a tiny shepherd's plaid in black and white. The coat is a useful straight sack with a touch of green at the collar and showing in the lining of the sleeves that widen at the wrists. The plastron front of the bodice is just the size and shape of the stiffened part of a man's dress shirt. It is of heavy green serge in a dark emerald shade, and is fastened down the center with some domed steel buttons. The green is continued round in a small yoke under the straight high collar, and there is a double line of it at the waist.

The always popular black velvet is used in another suit for more dressy occasions. This suit is studded with small steel clasps in an effective design. Black fur furnishes the material for the collar and is used as a finish for the sleeves which, like the majority shown this fall, widen at the wrist. The somberness of this costume is lessened by a lame blouse in silver made without sleeves. And the skirt is applied onto this blouse in a series of velvet circles of graduated sizes. There is a touch of rose-colored embroidery at the waist.

Evening Dresses Rich in Color.

A serviceable dress in this collection and an attractive one, too, is a little blue serge, quite straight in line, that opens down the side with a narrow gold galon. This galon widens to suggest a pointed pocket just below the waistline, which is defined by a narrow belt. The high collar is also bordered with the gold and a touch of emerald green, both of which are repeated in the cuff of the long straight sleeve.

Evening dresses are rich in color and material. Velvet is seen in bright the hips through accentuating the smallness of the waist.

There is, too, the usual surprise in store for the beholder of Poiret's creations. A white dress shows a back of unrelieved black. A black velvet three-piece suit has a front of pomegranate red.

An interesting black velvet suit has the fashionable bell-shaped coat and sleeves which so many couturiers in Paris are using. But Poiret with a bold stroke adds a rather tight-draped skirt instead of the bell-shaped one favored by Patou and other designers, thereby showing the deference to the popular taste for slender lines. At the same time he raises his banner in defense of the new silhouette in the width he gives to the bottom of the three-quarters coat. The scarlet cloth and gold braid with which this coat is trimmed can easily be replaced by a trimming of less startling shade, thus making the costume one which the conventional-minded will find more to their taste.

Modeled in Several Sections.

In the four-tiered skirt of the white satin evening dress Poiret apparently sets his stamp of approval on the new fashion of modeling the skirt in several sections, a fashion seen in daytime costumes as well as in the dressier ones for evening wear. The dress is unrelieved with the exception of the large chou of black velvet at the left side, the ends of which sweep the floor.

Another of the younger houses in Paris, Paul Carre, also favors the straight line, showing a few hooped skirts for the "coming out" wardrobe of the young girl. Many of his dresses are made without a belt, the waist being defined by drapery finished with a buckle, and this designer also favors the many tiered skirts, usually three. His skirts are longer than last year, but are still a comfortable walking length.

A Paul Carre evening gown called "la Dame en Rouge" is an example of the 1880 outline, once more becoming popular, with a finely plaited flounce from the knee in front. The straight corsage is finished with two slanting bias basques, in front, and curves down at the back, where it is the starting point of two panel trains each plaited from the knee downward to match the flounce in front. Vivid sealing wax red georgette is the material used for this "new" old-fashioned gown.

But out of all the gossip of fashion, salons and the more reliable gossip of couturier's work rooms one gathers that there is a strong tendency to differentiate sharply between the lines of street clothes and leisure-time clothes. The tailored suit is being revived, that is certain. Semi-rigid costumes are coming to the fore for daytime, or at least for morning wear, and those who remain faithful to the tailored frock will find that it has become more tailored and less limp as autumn advances.

In direct opposition to this masculinity of street costumes is the femininity of afternoon and evening dresses. Ruffles and ribbons are used in profusion, not only in the revival of 1880 styles but in new and original manners. Once more the waistline goes back to normal level, that is, almost back, and with this change in the figure of the modern woman efficient corseting is of increasing importance.

Eighteenth Century Styles.

At the recent Grand Prix ball in Paris Eighteenth century styles were much in evidence and marked the long step fashionable women have taken in the direction of puffs, ruffles and frills. Circular skirts and skirts which flare from the knee level toward the feet stress the femininity of modern styles.

All this is quite in line with Patou's theory that lovely woman must not reveal too much. Therefore he bans the straight, tight tailored fashions and champions the voluminous skirt, whose fullness he harmonizes with the modern idea of slenderness by making his skirts of soft materials which fall gracefully toward the ground.

Rather Slim Excuse.

Celia and Bobby disagreed, whereupon Celia slapped her brother. A wall brought their mother. Only after a long and severe reproof did the small girl's spirit melt and then she said: "Oh mamma, I'm sorry I slapped him, I didn't mean to. My hand slipped."

The Ballerina Had a Kick.

Enrico Cecchetti, the master of the Russian ballet, who taught Pavlova to dance, is responsible for this story of the power back of a ballerina's kick: "Fanny Ellsler was once crossing the ocean, and when she was lying in her berth one night she saw a man stealing toward her. She always kept her jewels under her pillow, and she immediately made up her mind that he was a thief. She waited till he came near to her, then she kicked him in the chest, and he fell down dead on the spot."—From the Argonaut.

Little Things Count.

Fourteen years ago a Chinese fish seller in Hong-Kong sold some fish to a woman missionary. On counting her change she handed him back several coins of very small value. The fish seller who had never had money returned to him before, was much impressed with the honesty of the foreigner, and made inquiries about the religion which she taught. He came under Christian instruction and was baptised. In the course of time he was ordained. Now he has 13 churches in his charge.

Production of Certified Potato Seed Increasing

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Production of certified potato seed has made rapid strides in the last four years, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1919 there were in the United States but 3,750 acres of potatoes that met the requirements set for the production of certified seed. In 1922 the acreage reached 17,258, and the production of certified seed was 2,273,900 bushels. In 1919, 43 per cent of the acreage inspected and offered for certified seed was accepted and passed; in 1920, 52.75 per cent; in 1921, 59.5 per cent; while in 1922, due to higher standards called for by the regulations, but 40 per cent of the acreage offered was accepted as good enough for certification.

Canadian potato growers have also been making increased effort to produce more certified seed, producing 309,065 bushels in 1922, as compared to 234,551 bushels in 1920.

The grading of certified seed potatoes is being given much attention in a number of the states and Canada where grading inspection is required, and requirements are equally strict in all localities. Certified seed must live up to its name both in looks and in results. It must be free from varietal mixtures, true to type, and comparatively free from blemishes and mechanical injuries. The growers of certified seed, the inspection agencies, and the organizations conducting the marketing of the product are all equally concerned and share a mutual responsibility.

Soy Beans to Replace Alfalfa in Lamb Feed

The use of soy beans to replace alfalfa in lamb feeding was given a trial during the past winter at the Illinois station. Results obtained from a ration of corn and soy bean hay were practically as good as from the standard ration of corn and alfalfa hay. When whole or ground soy beans with soy bean straw were fed in place of the hay, the results were less satisfactory, the gains being lower and the feed consumption higher.

The two lots fed alfalfa hay and soy bean hay gained at the rate of a third of a pound per head per day. On the basis of feed requirements for 100 pounds of gain, the alfalfa-fed lambs ate six pounds less corn but six pounds more hay than those fed soy bean hay. This showing would indicate that soy bean hay of good quality makes a very acceptable substitute for alfalfa.

Hog Is Most Efficient in Making Use of By-Products

With few exceptions, says the United States Department of Agriculture, there is feed enough wasted on every farm in the country to make the pork and pork products consumed on that farm. The hog is more efficient than other farm animals in making use of the farm by-products. With the hen the hog will select and utilize the whole some parts of unsound and unmarketable grains, refuse from truck crops, and by-products from the dairy. This is one reason why hogs are used on such a large proportion of our farms. But the hog's principal article of diet is corn, and the secretary of agriculture has remarked that "our hog crop serves as a slow absorber for the variation in production of our corn crop year by year, thus ironing out the irregularities in corn prices."

Timeliness in Spraying to Combat Many Diseases

In spraying to combat fungus diseases, we cannot emphasize too highly the importance of timeliness in making the application. The upper and lower surfaces of the leaves must be left well covered with the fungicide if we expect to avoid trouble. Too many growers do not fully realize the necessity of spraying before the enemy appears. After the plants are thoroughly infected, nothing can be done.

Several Advantages of Sweet Clover for Stock

The soy bean can be grown successfully with corn and is becoming a very popular crop in the corn belt, as it can be hogged down and helps to balance the ration of corn. It can be grown on a wide range of soils, but inoculation is necessary when it is grown for the first time. The hay from this crop contains a high percentage of protein and is palatable. This plant adds a great deal to the value of silage when it is grown with silage corn.

Select Tillable Land When Pasture Needed

Those who are in need of more pasture may select some of their tillable land and put in pasture at least for a few years till the land is improved and the increase in animals or animal products will pay for the reduction of crops as a result of fewer acres of tilled land and more pasture, perhaps a handsome profit in addition.

Mysterious Disease of Yellow Soy Bean Plant

A mysterious disease of yellow varieties of soy beans which causes mottling of the seed is believed to be caused by something in the soil or in the way the crop is tilled rather than something inherent in the seed, according to a news bulletin from the State university.

MERELY TOWN OF MEMORIES

Of Alaskan City of Skagway It Can Only Be Said That "Its Glory Has Departed."

One likes to believe that President Harding's itinerary in Alaska was changed so as to let him visit the town of Skagway because it was there that gathered, twenty-five years ago, an eager army of daring adventurers bound for the new gold fields on the Yukon, and he wanted to see a place the associations of which are of a nature so thrilling and romantic.

It was a strange multitude that landed on that wild coast and then started inland through the mountains. The facilities for land travel reached at that time their height in a dog team, and much more often the gold hunters themselves had to draw their sledges over the pass. Then they built boats or rafts on which to descend rivers with many dangerous rapids. The most primitive of conditions were revived. The law had little or nothing to say, and every man had to maintain his rights as well as meet the innumerable hardships of the journey.

In short, it was "the days of '49" repeated with variations. The same qualities as before were required for success, and even for the maintenance of life, under climatic conditions much more severe than those of California. Not a few died, more turned back in despair, having miscalculated their own powers of endurance, but the rest went on, and they found the gold! It was there, and in the form that makes "poor man's mining"—mining that is done with not much capital and little machinery.

The excitement did not last long. The easily accessible deposits along the river soon failed, and though Alaska still is a gold producer of some consequence, the work is done in a different way by people of a different sort. The glory and the picturesqueness have departed. Skagway and the White Horse pass no longer supply material for the writers of adventure novels, and big corporations and their hired men have replaced the strangely diversified participants of the original "rush."

It is business now, not romance, and the once roaring little city has become a quiet little village.—New York Tribune.

Satisfaction All Round.

Things sometimes turn out in a rather unexpected manner. Cornelius Cordite one day set out into the jungle to hunt big game. By a strange coincidence a panther also set out in the same jungle to look for some dinner.

"I must have a fur coat," said Cornelius.

"I must have something to eat," said the panther.

After both had prowled about for some hours they at last caught sight of each other.

"Aha!" said the hunter, leveling his gun, "there is my fur coat."

He fired, but the panther, dodging behind a tree, escaped unhurt.

Then the panther rushed out, fell upon the hunter, and devoured him.

So both were satisfied. The panther had his dinner and the hunter his fur coat.

Glands Opponent.

"I've been reading right smart in the papers, yur of late, about the treatment they're giving old men up yan in the east some's to make 'em young," stated a neighbor. "What do you think of the idy? Do you want to be young ag'n?"

"In some ways, mehbby, I mought," responded Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "But when I look at my fourteen children and rickyleet that I'd be younger than they are, and such being the case, they'd sure settle on me and beat me to death, I don't have no hankering to be young ag'n."—Kansas City Star.

He Looks Both Ways.

"I always have a mental picture of the months just past and those immediately in the future," said the Collingwood avenue resident. "I view myself as standing in the present month and looking forward and backward. I wish I were an artist; I could paint some picture of it. When I was a boy, July and August seemed as if they would last forever. Now I find myself thinking of Christmas and the presents I must buy, and of the coal I've got to get in. For I know that July and August, the vacation months, are the speediest in the year."—Detroit News.

Not All There.

Elizabeth came to school one day in a state of suppressed excitement. Going straight to the teacher's desk, she exclaimed exultantly, "I've got a new little sister!"

"How very nice," replied the teacher. "Yes," said Elizabeth, "but this is only a half-sister."

"Why, that doesn't make any difference, does it?"

"No, but I never can understand where the other half is."—Harper's Magazine.

Englishman Breaks Speed Record.

All world records for automobile speed were broken when William Campbell, an English driver, in a 350-horsepower British car, recently covered one kilometer in 16½ seconds, or 136 miles an hour, in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Horse That Keeps His Head.

When a horse suddenly finds a sled with four children on it in collision with him, rears up, comes down with one foot well out in front of the children and holds up the other till they scramble to safety, he literally gallops into everybody's heart. That's what a horse did recently in a Massachusetts town.—Our Dumb Animals.

Headache Cure.

A teaspoonful of charcoal powder in half a glass of water, is a cure for sick headache, and relieves heartburn. The powder is difficult to mix with water; it assimilates better with milk, so that the quantity named should be worked to paste with a small quantity of milk; sufficient water to make the draught being added.

AMBER A FOSSILIZED RESIN

Takes About a Thousand Years for the Material to Become of Commercial Value.

It is said by the orientals that when a tiger dies its soul penetrates into the earth and becomes a stone. This stone is the yellowish-brown bead which we see so often today in the long and short strings of Chinese amber.

Amber is a fossilized vegetable resin found in geological deposits. The heavy drops of resin are brought out on trees by the hot sun. The red fir tree is one instance. These balls of resin drop from the tree and sink into the earth. Each year the resin goes deeper below the surface. After a thousand years have elapsed the resin has become fossilized and is mined in large pieces. The beads for combs, necklaces and bracelets are cut and polished from the mined amber. There are many varieties of amber, such as stone amber, water amber, flower amber, black jet amber and wax amber. The latter is yellow in color and transparent.

The Chinese identify genuine amber by rubbing the stone between the hands. If it is the genuine stone it becomes warm from friction and will attract the mustard seed, or chaff, or dried leaves, just as a magnet attracts iron.

UNDERSTAND TALK OF BIRDS

Arabians Boast That They Can Hold Converse With the Creatures of the Air.

To understand the languages of birds is peculiarly one of the boasted sciences of the Arabians, who pretend that many of their countrymen have been skilled in the knowledge of the language of birds ever since the time of King Solomon.

It is related that Balkis, queen of Sheba, had a bird called Hud-hud—that is, lapwing—which was her trusty messenger to King Solomon. Another story tells that when Athehaj, a famous Arabian commander, and a camel driver were talking together, a bird flew over their heads, making at the same time an unusual sort of noise. The camel driver, hearing it, looked steadfastly on Athehaj, and demanded who he was. Athehaj, not choosing to answer, desired to know the reason of that question. "Because," replied the camel driver, "this bird assured me that a company of people is coming this way, and that you are the chief of them." While he was speaking, Athehaj's attendants arrived.

Pigeons are the favorite bird of the Mohammedans, as, according to their legends, a pigeon built its nest in front of a cave where their prophet was hid, and thus favored his escape from his enemies.

Madstone Treatment a Fallacy.

The belief that a madstone cures hydrophobia is an old tradition with no foundation. The Pasteur treatment administered by a competent physician is the only effective treatment known. For centuries the fallacy of the madstone treatment has existed among men. But, according to physicians, no person treated with a madstone ever recovered if the poison of rabies actually found its way into the blood. Many persons, after having been attacked by a supposedly rabid animal, have recovered upon the application of a madstone to the wound. The madstone's effect, however, was wholly imaginary.

The history of the madstone is as mythical as the efficacy of the stone in the treatment of rabies. It generally is conceded, however, that the "stone" was a part of the practice of medicine in India in the latter half of the Seventeenth century. Later explorations carried it to Europe and thence to America.—Kansas City Star.

Cockfighting Old Sport.

Cockfighting has flourished at one time or another in most countries of the world. The gambling attendant on such encounters led, in 1366, to the first prohibition of cockfighting in England. This prohibition was, in due course rescinded, and Henry VIII built the cockpit in Whitehall, destined to so many vicissitudes. In Peru even church dignitaries have figured among the lovers of "feather." When Sir Clements Markham was investigating Peruvian antiquities in 1853, he enjoyed the hospitality of a bishop who, after dinner, produced a gamecock and fought a match with the Cura Parroco's bird on the dinner table.

On the Night Shift.

Nighthawks and whippoorwills work chiefly at night, when most of the other birds are off duty, and at daybreak their good work is taken up by the swifts and swallows, says Nature Magazine of Washington. These birds are provided with big scapnet mouths, and as they swing through the air over wide areas of country they scoop up almost unbelievable numbers of insects. Six hundred were taken from the stomach of a single Arkansas nighthawk.

Unsafe to Wed in Afternoon.

"Married at high noon." In the old days in England, couples were always married at noon because the bridegroom could not be relied on to stay sober after the hour of one o'clock in the day. That was the origin of the expression. And in those days it was the custom for the newly wedded man to wait on his bride on their wedding day. As she sat at the table, he acted as servant to her. That was the origin of the word "bridegroom."

COUNCIL MASONS

Degrees of York Rite Will be Discussed in Marion January 30.

An event extraordinary is contemplated by Marion Council No. 22, Royal and Select Masters which is to have a special assembly in Marion January 30, to discuss York Rite Masonry. It is promised that this will be a very unusual affair, the first of the kind ever held in Marion if not in the state, to which the executive heads of all the grand bodies embraced by the York Rite in Ohio are being invited as guests of honor.

An outline of the program in preparation, the hour appointed being prompt at seven p. m., includes an introductory address by Harvey T. Gracely, thrice illustrious master of Marion council, and these topical discourses; Entered Apprentice and Fellowcraft degrees, Harry J. Merchant, past master of Marion lodge; Mark Master degree, Frank W. Little, high priest of Marion chapter; Royal Master degree, James H. Eymon, deputy master of Marion council; Select Master degree, Edward C. Rector, of Williamsport; past grand master of the grand council of Ohio; Master Mason degree, John H. Bartram of Marion, past grand master of the Grand Council of Ohio; Most Excellent Master degree, William Fies and Clyde C. Smith, past high priest and scribe respectively of Marion chapter; Past Master degree, Byron E. Wilson, worshipful master of Marion lodge; Super-Excellent Master degree, LeRoy D. Zachman, past illustrious master of Marion council; Royal Arch degree, C. C. Chappellear, past high priest of Circleville chapter; concluding and principal address, "Applied Masonry," by the Most Illustrious Grand Master of the Grand Council Henry A. Weeks, of Cincinnati. If there is sufficient time impromptu addresses will be made by grand officers present.

The addresses will be interspersed with appropriate vocal selections by a quartet in charge of Past Illustrious Master Asa Queen of Marion council.—Ohio Mason.
